1. Chinese Communist Party and Government leaders in Peiping have closely studied their position and the steps they should take with regard to the activities of the representation they are sending to meetings of the United Nations to discuss the Taiwan problem at the invitation of the Security Council. They have consulted various representatives of other parties and independent Chinese politicians.
2. On 15 October MAO Tse-tung, LIU Shao-ch'i, and CHOU En-lai made the following decisions:
 - a. The representatives will oppose the decision of the United Nations to discuss the status of Taiwan on the grounds that the Chinese people believe that since Taiwan was taken from them by the Japanese in 1898 it should now be returned to the Chinese, that initial agreements, especially those at Cairo and Potsdam concur that Taiwan should be returned to China, and that the return was decided long ago in that the Chinese have administered the Island since 1946. It will be pointed out that President Truman acknowledged on 5 January 1950 that Taiwan is without dispute Chinese territory, and that, therefore, the issue is not the status of Taiwan but the problem of armed invasion by the United States in contravention of the United Nations charter.
 - b. The representatives will then present charges against the United States for their aggressive acts and for their interference in China's internal politics. They will point out that the United States gave the Nationalists several billion dollars worth of military supplies for the civil war, resulting in the slaughter of Chinese people; that the United States fleet has been sent on several occasion to occupy Chinese naval bases and engage in hostile acts, thus hindering the conduct of the war of liberation; and that the United States has schemed with the Taiwanese to back an independence movement. The representatives will also state that even after President Truman's statement of non-interference of 5 January arms, ships, tanks, and aircraft have been sent to the Nationalists on Taiwan, as well as a camouflaged military advisory group under Admiral C. M. Cooke; and finally that after 27 June American naval forces openly invaded Taiwan and its territorial waters. For these reasons the Security Council should promptly and effectively stop American aggressive acts.

- c. If the Security Council will not accept these charges but votes to place Taiwan under a trusteeship pending the peace treaty with Japan, after making a strong gesture of opposition, the Chinese Communist representation will declare that the Chinese Communist Government, to demonstrate its sincerity toward the maintenance of peace, agrees to a peaceful liberation of Taiwan and a temporary United Nations trusteeship, provided the following terms are accepted:
 - 1. The Chinese Communist Government is to participate in the United Nations agency exercising the trusteeship.
 - 2. Every vestige of the Nationalist Government is to leave Taiwan as soon as the trusteeship goes into effect.
 - 3. The trusteeship covers the territory, but not the government of Taiwan, and that the Chinese Communist Government be empowered to take over the administrative authority as soon as the trusteeship becomes effective.
- d. If the Security Council also rejects these conditions, the representation will state that the Chinese Communists will by force of arms take possession of Taiwan as a part of the territory of China despite all obstacles and difficulties.
